1. Survey overview

The annual survey reached 186 residents and 240 family members, a response rate of 71%. Overall satisfaction fell from 81% to 72% and the Net Promoter Score (NPS) fell to +12.

Top reasons for dissatisfaction	Share of detractors
Maintenance works without notice (noise, water shut-offs, lifts out of service)	41%
Slow response to repair requests	27%
No updates on the progress of repairs	19%
Food and activities	13%

Families said the problem was less the works themselves than being surprised by them: 'We only found out the water would be off when Mother called us upset.'

2. Actions

- Maintenance communication protocol: 72 hours' notice of any works affecting residents, through the family app, noticeboards and a text message, with daily updates during multi-day works.
- Single point of contact: a resident-experience coordinator owns every open repair request and gives updates.
- Quiet hours: noisy works only between 10 am and 4 pm, avoiding rest times and meals.
- A contractor code of conduct for working in residents' spaces.
- A digital feedback kiosk in the lobby and in-app feedback for families, reviewed weekly.

3. Results after two quarters

KPI	Before	After
Net Promoter Score	+12	+26
Complaints about maintenance works (per quarter)	38	17
Average time to update on a repair (days)	3.2	1.0

4. Lessons learned

- How you communicate about works matters as much as the works themselves.
- Predictability builds trust: residents and families accept disruption they can plan for.
- Give frontline staff the authority to fix small issues on the spot.
